

Modi as RSS Pracharak

Pracharak is a Hindi word which literally means one who is a preacher or one who propagates. But in RSS parlance, Pracharak is not a canvasser, not even a propagandist, rather he is an individual who is inspired by the mission and objective of the Sangh and dedicates his full time for this mission. RSS Pracharaks are the missionary of nationalism whose sole aim is to devote their entire life for their aim of taking India to the supreme glory and the ideals of upholding Indian culture and spread the ideology of Hind-Rastra.

Pracharak is like a monk except for the orange robe. Pracharak has a very difficult, tough and full-time service. He lives a minimalist life where he hardly owns any material possessions. You won't find any such example in the history, where missionaries spread the fervor of nationalism instead of their own religion. Pracharak has to leave his home, family and job and devote his full time to spread the ideology of RSS. So, a very high level of devotion and dedication for the country is needed to become a pracharak. His day starts before the sun rise and end late at night. For a pracharak nation comes even before himself. He is always ready to sacrifice everything for nation. He leads an inspiring, simple and purposeful life. He possesses the skill of being knowledgeable, punctual and a good orator since he is role-model for the society. Pracharak is a full time worker for the nation. Mainly he works what the organization told him and wherever organization asks for the work throughout the nation. Hence, he has no his choice of work or choice of working field-to be absorbed in one action, one mission and one aim.
